SUMMARY

I learned a lot of coding techniques that could surely be useful for my next job as a full-stack web developer. I decided to step up because I am confident that I could help my next company with my knowledge and skills and that I could improve more of my skills in different kinds of work related to my field, especially programming. I also want to work with my future teammates to exchange ideas, listen to what is best for my company, and work as a team to help our company grow and become more stable.
